

Board of Directors Biographies

Juan Arteaga is a partner in the antitrust and white collar & regulatory enforcement groups in Crowell & Moring's New York office. His practice focuses primarily on advising companies, boards of directors and executives on a broad range of civil and criminal antitrust matters, including litigation, merger reviews, government and internal investigations, and counseling regarding various business practices. From 2013 to 2017, Mr. Arteaga was a senior official in the Antitrust Division of the U.S. Justice Dept. Serving as deputy assistant attorney general for civil enforcement, he worked on and oversaw investigations and litigation in various industries, including financial services, aviation, food and beverage, health care, technology, cable, manufactured products, transportation and telecommunications. He also served as chief of staff and senior counsel to the assistant attorney general for the Antitrust Division. Mr. Arteaga earned a bachelor's with honors in history and political science from Boston College, where he elected to Phi Beta Kappa and earned the Archbishop Oscar Romero Scholarship, and earned his law degree with honors from Columbia University Law School, where he served as managing editor of the Law Review and was a Harlan Fiske Stone Scholar. He is admitted to practice in New York and Connecticut, and is a member of the New York City Bar Assn., the American Bar Assn., the Hispanic National Bar Assn., and the Puerto Rican Bar Assn. He has received the New York Legal Aid Society's Outstanding Pro Publico Award in recognition of his pro bono representation of lawful immigrants in removal proceedings. He has received the Her Justice Commitment to Justice Award for his pro bono representation of indigent women in family court proceedings.

Evelyn Chumbow is a survivor of child labor trafficking turned anti-trafficking activist and public speaker. She has focused her life's work on ending modern slavery. Ms. Chumbow was brought to the U.S. from Cameroon at age 9 and forced to cook, clean and care for her trafficker's children. She was never paid for her work, and any hope that she might escape her miserable life was undermined by beatings she received from her trafficker. For seven years, she lived in constant fear, working day and night. Today, Ms. Chumbow works tirelessly to raise awareness and help other survivors. She serves as an adviser to human trafficking nonprofits and has been invited to brief government agencies about human trafficking from a survivor's perspective, including the Dept. of Homeland Security, the FBI and the Dept. of Justice. She was appointed by President Obama to the U.S. Advisory Council on Human Trafficking. Ms. Chumbow fulfilled a lifelong dream in 2015, graduating with a bachelor's in homeland security studies from the University of Maryland University College. She works as a project assistant at the law firm of Baker McKenzie in Washington.

Jane Covey retired in 2006 from a career in international development focusing on the emergence and growth of civil society organizations in developing countries. In the early 1980s she co-founded and served as executive director of the Institute for Development Research (IDR), a Boston-based research and education nonprofit which grew to become an internationally recognized pioneer in generating theory and organization development practice to strengthen the civil society sector in developing countries. Her diverse professional background also includes healthcare in U.S. urban communities and management consultation to nonprofit organizations, government and business. She has served on the boards of a number of local, national and international nonprofit organizations.

Daniel Elkes is the chair of the board of directors. As a trustee of the Elkes Foundation, he leads the foundation's anti-slavery efforts. He received his Ph.D. in genetics from Harvard University, and also has a Certificate in Public and International Affairs from his undergraduate studies at Princeton University. Dr. Elkes works in the biotechnology industry as the director of pipeline and portfolio planning at Genentech.

R. Wade Litchfield is vice president and general counsel for Florida Power & Light (FPL) in Palm Beach County, Florida, a subsidiary of NextEra Energy, Inc., one of the largest investor-owned electric utilities in the nation. He is responsible for all of FPL's legal matters. Before joining FPL, Mr. Litchfield was senior counsel for Entergy Corporation in New Orleans. Mr. Litchfield is a member of the New York and Louisiana bars and practices in Florida as authorized house counsel. A native of Alberta, Canada, Mr. Litchfield holds a bachelor's degree (cum laude) in economics from Brigham Young University and earned his law degree from McGill University in Montreal, Canada. He received a master's degree in business administration from Tulane University. Mr. Litchfield is a member of Leadership Florida and has chaired FPL's Palm Beach County United Way campaign. He chaired An Evening of Hope: Florida Unites to End Human Trafficking, a 2016 educational event live-streamed to more than 35 Florida college campuses. He serves on the board of Volunteer Florida Foundation and as volunteer coordinator for JustServe.org in South Florida. He also serves on the leadership advisory council at Place of Hope in Palm Beach County and has served on the board of Bella's Angels, a nonprofit assisting families with CHARGE syndrome and other rare disorders. He has served in a voluntary ecclesiastical position as president of the Stuart Florida Stake for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Lila Leno is the treasurer of the board of directors. Dr. Leno is a principal at Calibre CPA Group PLLC in Bethesda, Maryland. She has decades of auditing and accounting experience, including work with nonprofit organizations and government entities. She specializes in organizations that receive federal and state government funding and has performed numerous compliance audits in accordance with Government Auditing Standards, prepared 990s, and solved issues pertaining to tax exemption. Dr. Leno earned a bachelor's in accounting and finance from the University of Tirana in her home country of Albania, then continued her studies to earn a law degree and doctorate in fiscal policy. After moving to the United States, she graduated from Sonoma State University with a bachelor's in accounting. Before joining Calibre CPA Group, she served in various audit and accounting positions at Squire Lemkin, McGladry & Pullen, Goodman & Company, among other firms, as director of finance at CORE International, and as a fiscal and legal policy expert for the Albania ministry of finance. Dr. Leno is a registered CPA in the state of Maryland and a member of the Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

Carolyn Long is the vice chair of the board of directors. She retired in 2013 from a career as an international development specialist. She was vice president of two organizations, including InterAction, the largest coalition of U.S. NGOs working in international development and humanitarian assistance. She has three decades of NGO-related experience with a main focus on sub-Saharan Africa, and she has worked at all levels of development from the grassroots to the global level. Her work has focused on capacity strengthening, aid effectiveness, evaluation and a range of advocacy initiatives. She was an activist in the anti-apartheid campaign for 20 years. She has written extensively on the role of civil society organizations in development. She is the author of Participation of the Poor in Development Initiatives: Taking Their Rightful Place, and several published papers on civil society advocacy initiatives. She served on the boards of Africa Action and Volunteer: The National Center on Volunteerism. Her career began as a Peace Corps volunteer in Gabon, Equatorial Africa. She speaks fluent French.

Timothy Patrick McCarthy is lecturer on history and literature and on public policy at Harvard University. He is also core faculty and director of the Human Rights and Social Movements Program at the Carr Center for Human Rights Policy at the Harvard Kennedy School. Educated at Harvard College and Columbia University, where he received his Ph.D. in history, Dr. McCarthy is a historian of social movements who specializes in slavery and abolition, media culture and communications, and the politics of race, gender and sexuality in American culture. He is also a frequent media commentator, and a regular contributor to The Daily Beast, The Nation and The Huffington Post. In addition to his work as a scholar and teacher, Dr. McCarthy is a devoted public servant and outspoken advocate for social justice. Since 2002, he has served as academic director of the Boston Clemente Course in the Humanities, a multidisciplinary college course offered free of charge to low-income adults in Dorchester, Massachusetts. As founding director of Harvard's Alternative Spring Break Church Rebuilding Project, he has spent the last 14 years taking groups of students to rebuild black churches that have been burned in arson attacks. He was honored in 2007 by the National Coalition for Burned Churches for his longstanding commitment to civil rights and religious tolerance. A national leader in the lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender (LGBT) community, Dr. McCarthy was a founding member of Barack Obama's National LGBT Leadership Council, has given expert testimony to the Pentagon Comprehensive Working Group on the repeal of "Don't Ask, Don't Tell", serves on the advisory board of the Harvey Milk Foundation, and is lead research collaborator and founding governing board member for Face Value, an organization dedicated to eradicating social and cultural stigma against LGBT people.

Amy Komoroski Wiwi is a partner at Lowenstein Sandler LLP in Roseland, New Jersey. Long fascinated by the complex relationships among members of the workforce, managers and their employees, Ms. Wiwi translates a passion for problem-solving into strategic counsel and effective dispute resolution. Praised by clients as very knowledgeable and objective – and praised as a superior strategist – she thrives on crafting creative solutions to the most intricate of employment problems. Ms. Wiwi counsels employers on the myriad issues they face related to hiring, disciplining and termination of employees; family and medical leaves; disability leaves and accommodations; compliance with antidiscrimination and anti-retaliation laws; and workforce reductions. She also drafts and negotiates executive employment and consulting agreements and corporate covenants. Her practice covers a wide range of litigation involving federal and state laws. Ms. Wiwi is admitted to the bar in New York and New Jersey. She earned a bachelor's of fine arts (cum laude) from the Syracuse University College of Visual and Performing Arts, and her law degree (cum laude) from Boston University. She is deeply committed to serving her local community. Ms. Wiwi sits on the Jersey Battered Women's Service board of directors, supporting its work against domestic violence by protecting and empowering victims, rehabilitating family members, advocating social reform to prevent partner violence, and educating the public.

Update: July 23, 2019